MNRF called in to extinguish campfire

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

Algonquin Highlands's park, rec and trails manager is asking campers to ensure their fires are extinguished – really extinguished – before packing up and moving on.

On July 21, the Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry was dispatched in response to a campfire that had not been extinguished at the portage between Midway and Chico ponds, an area part of the township's water trails system.

"It was very small," said Dave Drobitch, "maybe the size of two picnic tables. There is no campsite [there]. It was not an approved fire pit. It burned down into the organics."

There are specified fire pits in the township's campsites, pits that meet criteria such as being located on mineral soil and in areas clear from overhanging brush.

On Sunday, township staff were surveying the sites and found two fires that had not been properly extinguished.

"You're not supposed to leave embers smouldering," Drobitch said, emphasizing that fires need to be thoroughly doused in water and checked for any hot remnants. "You've got to make sure it's dead out."

He added that embers can smoulder in a pit for several days and encouraged campers to exercise diligence.

"In general terms, our goal is to ensure the campsites are there to be used by people now and in the future," he said.

Algonquin Highlands has a bylaw specifying the size of campfires.

"In our by law campfires are to be a maximum of 60 cm by 60 cm and used for cooking and warmth," fire chief Mike Cavanagh told the paper. "A campfire should be in an area designed to contain the fire with no combustible vegetation close to it. Campers should always make sure their fire is completely extinguished by pouring water onto the fire. It should be stirred up and more water dumped on the coals to ensure extinguishment. Fines for fires within the municipality are billed at the MTO rate for the response (currently $410 a truck).

There are also provincial fines in place for negligence around extinguishing fires on Crown land.

Last week’s incident was investigated by MNR staff. “The only thing that was found on scene was old burned over garbage,” a ministry spokesperson told the Times. “There is not enough evidence to attribute the fire to anyone at this time.”

Impaired driver caught in RIDE check

On July 25, 2015 at approximately 2:45 p.m. officers from Haliburton Highlands detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were conducting a RIDE spot check at Deep Bay Road and Murdoch Road in the Minden Hills.

Officers conducted a vehicle stop and upon speaking with the male driver, the officer detected the odour of alcohol on the driver’s breath.

A roadside screening test was performed and the driver registered a fail.

He was placed under arrest and was transported to the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment for further testing.

The vehicle was towed and impounded for a period of seven days and his driver’s licence was suspended for 90 days as per statute.

A 29-year-old from Minden Hills has been charged with driving with more than 80 mgs of alcohol in his blood.

The accused is scheduled to appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Minden on Sept. 2.

RIDE check leads to drug charge

On July 25, officers from Haliburton Highlands detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were conducting a RIDE spot check at the intersection of Highway 35 and Highway 118 in Minden Hills.

Officers conducted a vehicle stop and upon speaking with the male driver, they had observed a quantity of suspected marijuana inside of the vehicle.

A 25-year-old from Cobourg has been charged with possession of under 30 grams of marijuana.

The accused is scheduled to appear in the Ontario Court of Justice in Minden, Ontario on Sept. 2.

Boat and motor recovered

On July 16, Haliburton Highlands detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were contacted regarding the theft of a boat and motor from an address on Canopy Lane in the Township of Algonquin Highlands.

Sometime between July 13 and 16, unknown person(s) removed a 1990 blue 14-foot Princecraft boat with a 15hp Mercury Motor that was docked on Maple Lake. The registration number on the vessel is # 30E16854.

The boat and motor have been recovered.

Property found

The Haliburton Highlands Ontario Provincial Police is seeking to locate the owners of several items that have been turned into the detachment within the last month.

Between July 1 and 28, three Apple iPhones, a woman’s wallet and a set of keys have been found in various locations throughout Haliburton County and were turned in to the police by members of the public for safe keeping.

If you believe any of these items belong to you and to provide more descriptors please contact the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment at 705-286-1431.

HHHS gets base budget boost

by JENN WATT
Editor

Haliburton Highlands Health Services will receive a one per cent increase to its base budget from the provincial government.

HHHS was expecting the funds, but confirmation the $85,500 was assigned to the corporation was still good news, CEO Varouj Eskedjian said last week.

“That’s a positive thing for us because that provides us an annual increase to keep up with inflationary cost and costs of negotiated increase with our union,” he said.

The negotiated increase with unionized staff is 1.5 per cent, meaning this boost from the province helps, but does not fully cover all of HHHS’s costs.

“It certainly doesn’t cover it all. It does put a budgetary pressure on us to come up with savings,” he said of inflationary pressures and wage increases.

The province announced more than $7 million for small and rural hospitals across the province on July 22.

Eskedjian said in the Central East Local Health Integration Network, only Campbellford and HHHS are considered small, rural hospitals.

Notice:

Traffic in downtown Minden and on Deep Bay Road will be congested due to the running of the 44th Highland Yard on Sunday morning, Aug. 2 of the long weekend. Pleased be advised to expect delays, take more time and to be careful of runners. Thank you! The Highland Yard Committee.

COUNTYCOUNCIL

Emergency calls up in Haliburton County

by ELIZABETH BATE
Times Staff

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the July 22 meeting of Haliburton County council.

EMS calls in Haliburton County are up 36 per cent from last year for the period from Jan. 1 to June 30, Craig Jones, director of the department of emergency services, said.

Jones said non-emergency calls decreased by two per cent, while the increase was seen in 472 urgent calls, up from 325 over the same period in 2014; and 704 emergency calls, up from 515 over the same period in 2014.

"It's a pretty significant increase, obviously. We're still managing," said Jones.

Calls that take paramedics outside of the county more often have increased as well, according to Jones, whether it is responding to calls in other counties or executing patient transfers to and from other counties.

Jones said the department is attempting to mitigate the impact of the increased call volume by adding more staff on the weekends and taking fewer non-emergency calls outside of Haliburton County to help other areas whose vehicles are tied up on calls. For those calls outside the county, a 60 minute hold-time has been developed for non-emergency calls in which a patient can reasonably wait for service if all other vehicles are busy, freeing up Haliburton County to attend to patients here. "That was a great collaboration by the chiefs to come up with that and ensure that no one is depleting anyone else's resources unnecessarily," said Jones.

The department is also taking fewer patient transfers from the hospital when all four county trucks are occupied, having those call outsourced to patient transfer services.

Jones reported a new data collection and call-tracking program called iMedic is making it easier for the department to track call response times, usage areas and areas where there could be greater efficiencies.

Side-by-side decision deferred

Council delayed making a decision on whether to allow side-by-side vehicles to travel on the Rail Trail in favour taking more time to review the issue.

Concerns regarding signage, staff and resources, brushing, and the width of the trail were discussed at the council meeting.

Operations manager Sylvain Cloutier said the 33-kilometre trail is 10 to 12 feet wide, however approximately 65 per cent or 21 kilometres of that trail is in need of brushing, reducing the width to only seven or eight feet in some areas.

Cloutier said about $10,000 had been allocated to complete some mechanical brushing this fall, but to complete the 21-kilometre length of trail would require a budget of $24,000.

Councillors expressed concern about the look of mechanical brushing, which is less expensive and takes less time to complete, but shreds the brush overhanging onto the trail.

Manual brushing was discussed as an option, but would require a larger budget.

Manufacturers are allowed to make side-by-sides up to 6.6 feet wide not including mirrors.

While there isn't a side-by-side in production that exceeds five feet in width, Cloutier pointed out this wouldn't prevent a manufacturer from creating one up to the maximum allowable width.

Cloutier expressed concerns with visibility due to the brush overhang and the current width of trails, which may cause a hazard to other trail users should side-by-sides be allowed to operate on the Rail Trail.

Council voted to defer the decision on the new bylaw to a future meeting to allow more research and discussion into the issue.

Weir damned

WHILE SOME MAY shake their heads at this statement, the control of water levels within Haliburton County is best left to the folks at the Trent-Severn Waterway.

Being a lakeside resident in Haliburton County can be a proverbial roller coaster ride.

If you live on one of the feeder or reservoir lakes of the TSW, you're accustomed to ups and downs, the rise and fall of water levels as water is funnelled through the system to sustain levels on the Trent-Severn canal, which stretches 386 kilometres from Trenton on Lake Ontario to Port Severn on Lake Huron.

Typically, following the spring melt, levels start high and then recede as the summer unfolds, but there can be fluctuations within this drawdown.

It can be frustrating, requiring residents to move docks and water intake systems and sometimes, typically in late summer, results in beached boats.

Some residents of Maple Lake have formed a committee and are seeking to mitigate fluctuations on the water body with a sort of do-it-yourself solution.

The committee wants to increase the height of an old weir between Maple and Beech lakes by two feet, thereby retaining more water in Maple.

Despite assurances the plan would not dramatically impact levels on Beech Lake, neighbours there are understandably uncomfortable with the idea.

The weir plan would require the purchase or use of shoreline road allowances owned by Algonquin Highlands township, something councillors don't seem overly interested in, and something council should continue to stay out of.

The township should stick to matters of roads, landfills and parks and leave water control where it belongs, with the federal government.

I can sense the eye rolls, the grunts of disagreement. I know the TSW is not especially popular among some waterfront residents and some are of the opinion that Parks Canada does a poor job of water management in the feeder system.

However, the infrastructure is run by educated professionals who do their best with a massive, complicated and aging system more than a century old.

It's overseen by an engineer, not a chimpanzee.

The idea of a group of residents taking it upon themselves to retain more water in their lake conjures up visions of a future of Wild-West-style water management, residents of one lake competing against those of neighbouring water bodies for volume.

My family has a cottage on Halls Lake, which has a dam at either end; the Hawk Lake log chute at the top and the dam at Buttermilk Falls at the bottom.

What if residents of Halls Lake decide they want a weir near the Buttermilk Falls dam? Better yet, maybe the TSW will just let me personally control the logs in the Buttermilk dam.

Hyperbole of course, but you get the picture.

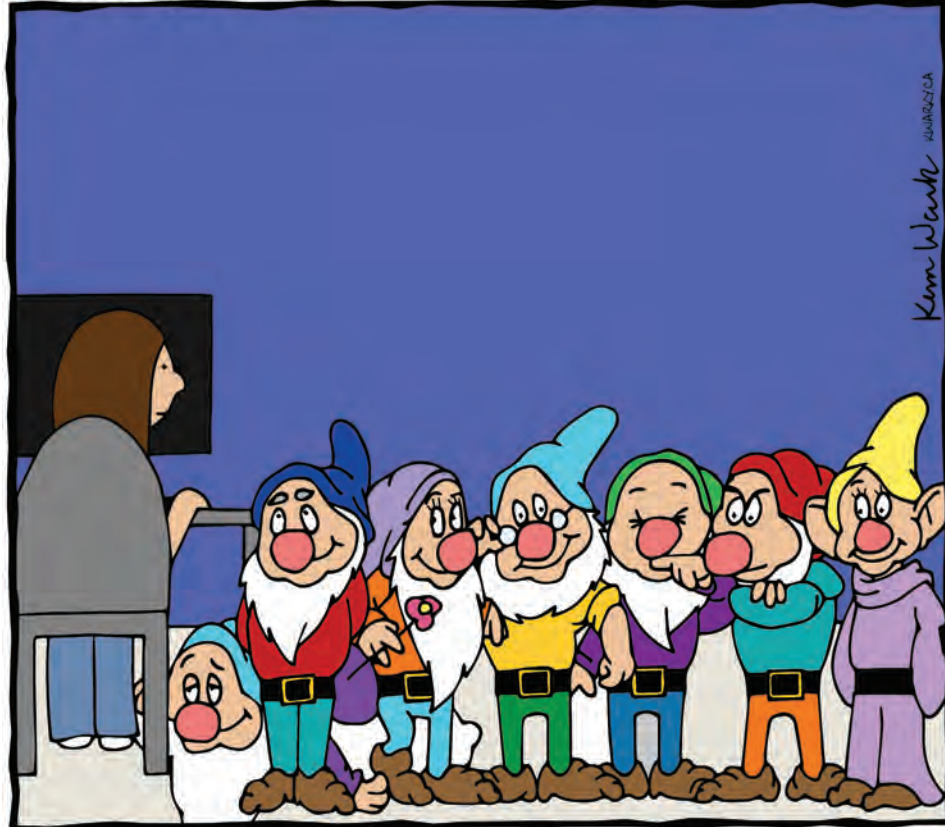

There have been numerous water level committees struck in the community over the decades. They eventually fold.

It's because when it comes to fluctuating water levels on TSW lakes in Haliburton County, we're all damned.

Communicable diseases

There was a time when you could pose questions to a major corporation, large organization or provincial or federal government agency and actually get an answer that wasn't gobbledy-gook. Then someone invented the communications department.

For those outside the media, let me explain. A communication department's role is to needlessly complicate – and often completely disrupt – communications.

Here's a typical scenario.

I phone a meteorologist and ask a simple question: "Hi, I'm doing a story for Tomorrow Magazine. What is the weather going to be like tomorrow?"

Meteorologist: "I'd really like to answer your question but all media inquiries must go through our communications department. Here's their number."

I phone the number and get voice mail "Hello, this is the communications department of the Weather Office for the week of July 5, 1899. Please leave a message."

Me: "Hi, this is Steve Galea from Tomorrow Magazine. I have a media request and a tight deadline; could you please get back to me at (insert office and cellphone number here) as soon as possible?"

There is no reply in the immediate future.

Three days later, my phone rings.

"Hello, Mr. Galea. This is Don Delay from the Weather Office. I'm the junior communications officer. You had a question?"

"Uh, yes, but I needed the answer two days ago."

"When is your deadline?"

"Two days ago."

"So you don't need the answer I prepared?"

"You prepared? But I asked for your meteorologist."

"Mr. Galea, meteorologists are highly educated in their field but they are woefully unprepared when it comes to dealing with the public and media. We here in the communication's department take their simple weather-speak and craft it into a message that's wonderfully vague and media friendly."

"OK, I'm curious. What's the answer you prepared?"

He then reads the talking points followed by this:

"The Weather Office, utilizing state of the art weather prediction methodology, a team of highly trained meteorologists, proven scientific theory and meteorological tools determined that temperatures were somewhat above average for the day in question at the latitude and longitude specified. This, in conjunction with a lack of precipitation and scarcity of cloud cover – which is in no way related to the Climate Change Policies of the federal government – as well as a lack of velocity of air movement suggests that the day in question was, at the time of observation, characterized as supra-warm and overtly luminous, notwithstanding subtle shifts in wind direction and the use of non-sunny apparatus, such as, but not limited to, beach umbrellas, ball caps, front porches, monuments and other shade producing structures, mobile objects, large persons or constructions...."

"You're saying it was hot and sunny?"

"I am not authorized to say that without express consent from my director."

"Thank you."

"Mr. Galea, if you choose to use this quote, we'd like to pre-read the article."

"No."

"Well, perhaps we won't be as cooperative next time... hmmm."

OK, I might be exaggerating a bit. But you'd be surprised how close I am to the truth on this one. It's gotten past the point of ridiculousness.

In fact, I was recently asked to write a news piece by a federal government department that was going to communicate their new licensing process. They needed us to do the story so their customers knew about it in time.

Unfortunately, that story was scrapped when the communications people from that same department could not finalize the "messaging" in time.

This is another example of our tax dollars at work, folks. And, not surprisingly, it's very hard to understand.

Bears I have known

THE FIRST QUESTION SUMMER visitors to the lake ask is: "Are there bears here?"

"Yep," I reply, if the visitor is someone I don't want around for long.

Bears and I have an extensive and troubled history. It began when I was no higher than a poplar sprout. My dad delighted in telling me bear stories that left me open mouthed and eyes as wide as satellite dishes. His favourite was about the bear that walked across his chest.

He was sleeping in a spruce bough lean-to with my grandfather when he sensed a strange presence and smelled a hot, fetid breath. Then he felt his father's fingers squeezing his forearm. It was a signal to lie still, very still.

The story ended well. The bear found nothing that interested him and wandered off into the night.

My first real encounter with bears was up the North Branch of the Current River outside Thunder Bay. An old tote road followed the stream far into wild trout country. You could navigate it with a car if you carried a couple cans of engine oil and a bar of soap. The soap was to plug any oil pan puncture sustained by hitting rocks on the rough track.

My teenage pals and I were chugging along the tote road in a jalopy when I spotted two bear cubs playing in a small clearing. We decided it would be fun to have a pet bear cub, so I jumped from the car and ran toward them. Before I reached them I heard a screaming roar, followed by a pair of blazing red eyes emerging from the trees at express train speed. It was the twins' mom.

JIM POLING SR.
From Shaman's Rock

I was never a speedy runner but reached the rear passenger door one step ahead of the enraged mom. As we drove off I saw a large bear paw on the window and a pair of very angry eyes.

Years later I was fishing alone at a beaver pond on St. Joseph's Island outside Sault Ste. Marie. The best fishing always is on the far side of any body of water. To reach the other side of this pond I had to cross a colossal beaver dam.

Twilight arrived and I decided to find the trail back to my car. I climbed onto the dam, which had to be at least 200 yards long, and started across. Something at the other end had the same idea. It was large and black and was heading toward me.

I considered my options: Jump off the dam into the water (I am a non-swimmer); jump to the right into the steep tangle of beaver-sharpened sticks; back off the dam into the darkening woods where the bear crossing the dam was headed.

I waved and shouted to chase him off the dam. He stood and stared stupidly at me, tossed his head, then went back on all fours and continued coming.

I was licensed to carry a handgun and had one in my backpack. It was small calibre and certainly would not drop a bear, but I hoped it might persuade him to turn back. I put a shot between his feet. He stood, shook his head, then advanced. I repeated the shot. He repeated his moves.

It was panic time so I put a shot just over his head. He got up on hind legs again and shook his head angrily. The water was starting to look good to me. Then reluctantly, he dropped to all fours, turned awkwardly and loped back to where he had come from.

Bears occasionally stop by my lake place to check if anything tasty has been left on the deck. A daughter once left out a cooler bag filled with goodies for a cocktail reception the next day. A bear came in the night and made off with it.

I trailed him the next morning and found his picnic site two hills back behind the cottage. The clawed and chewed cooler bag was there but the two containers of red pepper jelly and 75 jalapeno poppers were gone. I expected him to return for Alka-Seltzer but he never showed up again.

First Nations language

To the Editor,

Recently National Chief Perry Belgarde, spoke on the need for First Nations language to be taught in schools. Lorena Fontaine of the University of Manitoba furthered this by speaking of the great advantage learning different languages brings to the development of the brain. It is interesting to note that French immersion has led the way in this country both in understanding the importance of languages and paving the way for native languages to be included.

We learned from the Truth and Reconciliation Report how the children were not allowed to speak their native language for the 10 years of their school lives. Most of us who cannot even imagine what it would mean to lose our language understand the importance of reclaiming ones' identity through language.

I spoke with Murray Whetung of Curve Lake First Nations about language. He graciously shared bits of wisdom. In the '60s the government was prompted to include First Nations languages until they found out how many there were.

Ojibwa language is spoken across Canada, and each settlement has their own dialect. There is also Cree and Huron among others. Interestingly, the Odawa (Ottawa) as travellers (traders) spoke many languages.

Murray also explained the word Nishnaabe as meaning the first man, and Anishnaabe as the first peoples.

This year the heritage exhibit at the Kinmount Fair Sept. 4 to 6 is featuring first peoples. Do you want your story included? Contact jmacdonald11@bell.net.

This Week In...

When a newspaper has been serving a community for more than half a century, it builds up quite a collection of archives. The Times office is packed with boxes of old papers dating back to the 1960s, when the publication was known as the Minden Progress. It took the name the Times in the 1970s. Each of these boxes is like a time capsule, revealing the issues of the day. Many of the stories provide context for narratives that are still playing out in one way or another today. Every week, the Times will take a look at what happened in Minden 10 years before, in 2005, and 25 years before, in 1990.

From the July 29, 2005 issue:

Minden Hills Reeve Ross Rigney is in hospital recovering from a mild stroke on his left side, the front page story reads. Rigney had originally been taken to hospital in Peterborough, but was recovering in Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay when the paper was published. Rigney, who was the first reeve of the amalgamated Township of Minden Hills, would eventually resign his position, with Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon taking the helm. Rigney passed away in 2011.

Minden Hills township fires its clerk in 5-2 recorded vote by council. The details of the termination were discussed in a closed-session meeting and were not made public. At the time of the story, it was unclear whether the dismissed clerk would be taking any legal action.

Minden Pharmasave hosts a "makeover extravaganza," as Doug Atkinson, makeup artist for Global TV's Diva on a Dime visits town.

Minden Hills get a $20,000 from the the MNR for bear-proof bins in its landfills and parks. Bears rummaging for food in landfills and dumpsters throughout the community was becoming a problem.

CBC personality Ron MacLean plays in a celebrity golf tournament at the Pinestone that was a fundraiser for Haliburton Highlands Health Services. The tournament made $48,000.

From the July 30, 1990 issue:

A third Staunworth seniors' apartment is scheduled to be constructed on Minden's Parkside Street. The third building would differ from the existing two, the front-page story reads, as it would provide assisted living spaces, as well as apartments for self-sufficient seniors.

Two canoeists have minor injuries after they are launched from their vessel while trying to traverse the Minden Wild Water Preserve. Their canoe smashed into the rocks, breaking in half. The men vowed they would try again to pass the rapids.

by CHAD INGRAM

It's a smell synonymous with summer and anyone driving Highway 35 through Minden recently may have gleaned a whiff of fresh-cut fries.

Northern Sizzler BBQ, a chip truck located at the intersection of Highway 35 and South Lake Road, fired up its fryers mid-July.

"Everybody says Minden needed a good fry truck," says Linda Royle, who's cooking up business with partner Kirk Sullivan.

Along with typical fry truck fare – French fries, poutine (made with real cheese curds), hamburgers, hot dogs – Northern Sizzler will also be serving up on-the-go entrees such as pulled pork, Montreal smoked meat, perhaps roast beef.

"We thought we'd take a little different direction," Royle says. "We're just playing with [the menu] right now. I'm just waiting for my steamer to come."

Royle says business has been steady so far. The shop is open Wednesday through Sunday, 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

There are picnic tables outfitted with umbrellas for those who wish to eat on site.

Royle says she plans to stay open for the season until November or so.

Linda Royle serves up an order of poutine at her new business, Northern Sizzler BBQ, located at the corner of Highway 35 and South Lake Road in Minden.

Rabid bat prompts warning from health unit

The Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is warning residents to be cautious around bats after receiving confirmation that a bat tested positive for rabies in the Brighton area.

Rabies is almost always a fatal disease caused by a virus that affects the central nervous system of warm-blooded animals, including humans. Rabies is transmitted when there is contact with the saliva of an infected animal through a bite, lick or scratch. A post-exposure vaccine is available for humans in the event of contact with a rabid animal.

Although the percentage of rabies in bats is low across Ontario, bats are wild animals and should not be approached or touched. Never try to catch a bat or keep one as a pet. If you have bats living on your property and want to remove them, contact a professional pest control company or wildlife removal company.

"Contact with bats, and all wild animals, should be avoided," says Richard Ovcharovich, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit.

Bats in the home can be a nuisance and potential hazard to you and your family. Bats are also capable of transmitting rabies to humans and other animals. Although most animal bites are readily apparent, bites inflicted by bats on, an infant, a child or those with cognitive impairments, may not be felt or leave any visible bite marks.

Please follow these instructions when it comes to bats:

If you suspect you may have been bitten or had contact with a bat, report this to both your family doctor and the HKPR District Health Unit at 1-866-888-4577.

If you discover a bat outdoors that is injured, acting strange or dead, do not touch it.

If you are bitten or scratched by a bat that is discovered in your home, leave the room, close the door and contact a wildlife removal company. Do not touch a bat with your bare hands. If there was no human contact (bite or scratch) open a window and allow it to get out.

As bats can transmit the rabies virus to domestic pets such as dogs and cats, ensure pet vaccinations are up to date.

If you suspect your pets or livestock have come in contact with a rabid animal, contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) at 905-513-2850.

Bat-proof the home. If bats are found in the home, the person should seek advice from an animal control or wildlife conservation authority

Blue-green algae turns up in area lakes unexpectedly

If you're in or on the water this summer, be on the lookout for microscopic organisms that can make a splash for all the wrong reasons.

Blue-green algae (BGA) has surfaced in some area lakes over the past few summers, posing potential health problems for anyone who swims, drinks or uses the water. That is why this year, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is again urging residents, cottagers and visitors who use local lakes and waterways to be on the lookout for BGA and to take precautions if they spot it.

"Blue-green algae can form on local lakes, especially when conditions are right for it," says Richard Ovcharovich, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit. "If you detect serious signs of blue-green algae in a lake or local waterway, avoid using the water. Any exposure to the water, be it drinking, swimming, bathing, cooking or washing, can lead to health problems."

Consuming water with blue-green algae can result in headaches, fever, diarrhea, abdominal pain, nausea and vomiting. According to Ovcharovich, boiling the water won't help either, as this kills the blue-green algae resulting in the release of more toxins into the water.

BGA, also known as cyanobacteria, are primitive microscopic organisms that occur naturally in lakes, bays and inlets around the world. Normally, the algae are barely visible, but during warm weather the algae can rapidly increase in shallow, still waters to form a large mass called a bloom. Dense blue-green algae blooms can make the water look like a bluish-green pea soup, or a shiny paint slick. Most algae blooms are short-lived and will break down in a few days or weeks.

While many forms of blue-green algae are harmless, some forms produce toxins that can be harmful to humans and animals. "The extent of how sick people can get depends on the type of BGA and how long they are exposed to the toxins," Ovcharovich says.

The health unit wants to raise awareness about the blue-green algae problem by helping people spot it, determine its severity and identify what actions to take to deal with it. Information on how to identify different categories of BGA is available at any local Health Unit office or by visiting www.hkpr.on.ca. In general, blue-green algae can be placed into three categories:

Category 1: Water appears cloudy, but you can still see through it. There is no health effect expected at this stage, although swimming is discouraged, especially if you cannot see into the water.

Category 2: Water colour changes in appearance, and algae may appear in clusters or flakes in the water (like a pea puree).

Category 3: This is a dense bloom, resembling a paint spill or forming a scum on the water. The algae is easily swept by the wind and deposited near the shore.

For blue-green algae that falls into either category 2 or 3, people are advised to avoid swimming or using water for drinking, cooking, rinsing foods or washing dishes. Pets should also be prevented from entering or drinking the water. Unaffected areas of the lake can be used as usual, and recreational water activities can resume 24 hours after the bloom has disappeared.

"People who draw water from lakes or slow-moving rivers where there are frequent BGA blooms may want to find an alternate water source such as a drilled well, a dug well far from shore, or a water holding tank filled with water from a licensed water treatment plant," Ovcharovich suggests.

Links at Monck's Landing open under new ownership

by ELIZABETH BATE
Times Staff

A unique and historical highlands feature is getting a whole new feel.

Under new ownership, the Links at Monck's Landing celebrated their grand reopening shortly after Canada Day to what general manager Travis Shawcross calls an amazing response.

"It's been really, really good. The local residents are happy that it's owned by locals and the cottagers, most of our business is cottagers, and they're very relieved that we're open again," Shawcross said.

When new owners Lydia and Mat Doble acquired the course in late June it wasn't ready, said Shawcross. Previous owners had stated on the course's website it would be closed for the 2015 season, so no preparations had been made to get it up and running.

"The greens we have to revitalize and bring them back to life, but people understand that because it's newly opened," said Shawcross. "They had to cut the grass and get the greens living again, so to speak."

With the course's ownership in question, Shawcross says cottagers in May and June were afraid the closed sign would remain up permanently.

"A lot of them were up May long weekend and we weren't open then so people thought that it was closed forever and even this morning I had people come in and say 'thank you for opening we just love your golf course,'" he said.

From the time golfers tee-off from the elevated start at the first hole, to a last look at the ninth green, the links-style golf course offers wide sloping views of the green rolling hills surrounding Norland, and its vistas aren't the only thing to look at. Situated at the top of the hill, the pro-shop calls an early-20th century barn home.

"That barn was built by hand in the early 1900's. We've dated it back to, I believe it's 1918," said Shawcross. "It was built all from stone from the property. There are two barns in Canada that are built from floor to ceiling from stone, that's it."

The barn used to be used for feeding and housing cattle, but soon it will be used for dancing and celebrating.

"By next year we're going to be doing everything from weddings and conferences. It's huge and you can see the ceiling and you can see the stone wall, it's really quite something," said Shawcross.

Currently the course is fully licensed, with both a patio and a beer cart, and has snacks available in the pro-shop. Shawcross says the new ownership wants to offer food from a full kitchen in the future, but needs to ensure they are making the appropriate arrangements before offering meals as well.

"This year we're not going to have much in the way of food, but by next year we'll be up and running and we'll have a full smorgasbord of food."

A par 35 for nine holes, Shawcross says the course is challenging enough to entertain golfers of all abilities.

"We get such a variety of golfers. Like we get those people that are pros, they want to make it to the big leagues, and we also get people who are new and beginners," he said. "This is one of the most challenging nine hole golf courses. Our eight, that's the monster. It's a par five, which is unheard of for nine hole golf courses and it shoots out at 538 yards."

Shawcross says "the drink" on six also presents a challenge, but there aren't too many hazards and with wide fairways and short grass, it's easy to hit the ball from wherever it's landed.

The widening of the Fairways came at the request of golfers from previous season who, according to Shawcross, complained about the challenge of narrow fairways and tall grass. That kind of response to customer requests is the most important feature of the new ownership, says Shawcross.

"Customer service is the most important part," he said. "You've really got to have service. You've got to treat people well, you know. They pay my mortgage, they pay my bills, and it's about time that people really understood that service is kind of a driving force behind something like the retail industry."

The Links at Monck's Landing is open seven days a week from 7 a.m. until dusk and can be reached at 705-454-0591.

MPP objects to piece in Queen's Park exhibit

by ELIZABETH BATE
Times Staff

MPP Laurie Scott is concerned about the type of images a public gallery in Toronto has chosen to display.

The MPP for Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock and PC women's issues critic released a statement against a piece by artist Rosalie H. Maheux displayed at the John B. Aird gallery in Macdonald Block, one of a series of buildings in the Queen's Park area that houses government and ministry offices.

"After watching a news report on CityNews last night, the PC Caucus is disappointed to see an art gallery, located inside a publicly owned government building, has chosen to display graphic and sexually explicit images of women," said Scott in a July 16 release.

Although the gallery is in Macdonald Block, it is a not-for-profit gallery not associated with any government ministry.

The image Maheux, a Quebec native who studied art at the University of Toronto, chose to show and sell at the 30 Under 30 exhibition is from a series she calls Sacred Circles. The series shows mandalas and sacred circles made up of a mosaic of images of explicit material.

When viewed from a distance, the piece in question, a three-foot square canvas titled Sacred Circles VI, appears to be an image of a mandala with a pattern of pinkish-hued small circles repeated in increasingly larger circles. When viewed up close the work shows those circles are made up of tiny pictures of women in sexually compromising positions.

In a statement on her website the artist says she fears people have reacted to a work they haven't seen, and the works in the series are meant to look at the oppositions between the sacred and the profane, creating a clash between the two types of images and a dialogue between attraction and repulsion.

"The irony in my work is that it becomes more challenging as you approach it, as its elements draw our attention to our stake in the politics of looking, voyeurism, sexual degradation, sexism, sexuality, and so on," Maheux said in a written statement.

Maheux's piece is just one of 35 works from 30 different artists chosen for the exhibition by curator Gary Michael Dault. In a gallery release, Dault said he chose the work because of "its inventive, thoughtful, and searching nature."

In her statement, Scott said she felt the graphic nature of the work was inappropriate for a gallery in a government building, fearing it objectified women.

"Regardless of the aims or intent of the artist, Ontarians expect their government to lead by example in combating the sexual objectification of women. The fact that a publicly housed gallery has been allowed to not only display but to sell images of this nature is very worrisome," said Scott.

Maheux's statement said the objectification of women and value society places on female attractiveness was part of what led her to create the contentious image.

"Given these standards, as a woman artist, it only makes sense that I would take the images of women that are out there, including the sexualized and the pornographic, reconfigure them on my own terms, and offer them back as something transformed," she wrote.

The gallery's written statement said it strives to promote a challenging dialogue and it will not censor the work, but it has placed a sign with a mature content warning in the gallery. The warning sign was in place for the remainder of the exhibit, which closed July 24.

Attempts were made to reach Scott, Maheux, and the gallery, however, these attempts were not successful. Maheux wrote that she is only giving interviews "to media that promotes an open minded and positive view of contemporary art," while the gallery's phone was disconnected at press time.

Requests to interview Scott were also declined.

Physiotherapy services improving at HHHS

Haliburton Highlands Health Services says access to publicly funded physiotherapy services has improved and that wait times have been reduced "significantly" in recent months.

Following the recruitment of several new staff and the launch of the Community Physiotherapy Clinic, availability of the service has increased in both Minden and Haliburton, a press release from HHHS states.

"With the successful recruitment of physiotherapists we have been able to reduce wait times to access the service to just a couple of weeks from times of greater than one year," CEO Varouj Eskedjian said.

Funding from the Central East Local Health Integration Network allowed for the new clinic and board chairman John Kay said the investment allowed HHHS "to meet its commitment to quality and service excellence, core priorities in HHHS's new strategic plan."

He noted that having services available in Minden and Haliburton reduced travel time for area residents.

"I am pleased to be able to bring 30 years of experience to help Haliburton County and area residents address their mobility issues and improve physical limitations," said newly hired senior physiotherapist Paul Stackhouse. Along with Tulio Romanelli, Jan Gerrow and Amanda Hamilton, the team is accepting new patient referrals for acute and sub-acute conditions. To access physiotherapy services through HHHS, you must be referred by a physician.

Province declares Terry Fox Day

The province of Ontario will recognize a great Canadian hero, Terry Fox, by naming the second Sunday after Labour Day in September as Terry Fox Day.

Scarborough-Agincourt MPP Soo Wong introduced Bill 61, The Terry Fox Day Act in December of 2014. Second reading of the bill took place in March with several MPPs speaking in favour of honouring this special young man. Local MPP Laurie Scott spoke in favour of the bill and in her speech she mentioned several runs that take place within her riding. She specifically mentioned the Minden run. Scott has participated the last two years at the Minden site. The bill passed second reading and was then sent to committee.

On June 3, a motion was introduced to bring the bill out of committee and was then given third reading and passed unanimously by all present in the legislature. It was then given royal assent the next day by the Lt. Governor of Ontario.

The Minden Terry Fox Run committee is very excited to be able to not only celebrate the 35th anniversary of the Marathon of Hope and the Terry Fox Run but also to celebrate the very first Terry Fox Day in Ontario.

The Minden Terry Fox Run will take place on Sunday, Sept. 20 at the Minden Community Centre's upper parking lot. This will be Minden's 22nd annual run and the committee is busy preparing for this year's $230,000 for cancer research and with 84 cents of every dollar going directly to research big advances are being made by researchers being funded by the Terry Fox Foundation.

For more information regarding the upcoming run you can contact chair Diane Peacock at 705-286-4914 or by email at mindenterryfoxrun@interhop.net.

Understanding of God changes over time

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE heard that... A man has been lost and walking in the desert for about five days. One hot day – actually, they’re all hot – he comes to the home of a preacher. Tired and weak, he crawls up to the house and collapses on the doorstep. The preacher takes him in and nurses him back to health. Feeling better, the man asks the preacher for directions to the nearest town. The preacher tells him the directions, and offers to lend him his horse to make it. The preacher says, “However, there is a special thing about this horse. You have to say ‘Thank God’ to make it go and ‘Amen’ to make it stop.”

Anxious to get to town, the man says, “Sure, okay” and gets on the horse. He says, “Thank God” and sure enough, the horse starts walking. A bit later he says louder, “Thank God, thank God,” and the horse starts trotting. Feeling really brave, the man says, “Thank God! Thank God! Thank God!” and the horse is soon up to a full run!

About then he realizes he’s heading for a huge cliff and yells “Whoa!” But the horse doesn’t even slow! It’s coming up real quick and he’s doing everything he can to make the horse stop. “Whoa, stop, hold on!” Finally he remembers “Amen!”

The horse stops a mere two centimetres from the cliff’s edge, almost throwing him over its head. The man, panting and heart racing, wipes the sweat from his face and leans back in the saddle. “Oh!” he says, gasping for air, “Thank God.”

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE also heard Rev. Max say that ...

He has two short messages. Firstly, come and see us at our drop-in open house on Saturday, Aug. 29, 2 to 5 p.m. Never been in a church before? See what is behind that stained glass and those oak doors in a casual manner. The intent is to attract our community and tourists to see what goes on inside our churches in a non-threatening way, disseminate information to show who we are, what we believe, what we do and other church community interest groups and activities. All are welcome. This is a joint effort between the four church denominations represented in this Church Mouse column. Watch for further advertising right here in The Minden Times and also in other locations.

Secondly, whether they are the hot, humid days or the pouring rain days, summer is upon us. As I write, it is actually mid-July and it is a cool evening. No matter whether it is a cool rainy day or a sunny one, it makes me day dream of going flying. Starting June 20 and until the end of July, I am very fortunate to be enjoying a time of Sabbatical. A Sabbatical is an intentional time of study, revitalization and rest. I’ll be taking a couple of interesting online courses. It is shaping up to be a busy Sabbatical but one of study and a change of pace interspersed with many opportunities to be with my family.

It is interesting to see how things change over time. People slowly change too over time. There are many things that don’t ever really change much like the way the sun sets over the lake in the evening or the way the weeds always struggle with the beauty of the flowers in the garden. Even the glint in a lover’s eye never seems to change for that special loved one.

We like to think that God never changes. I believe that is true. God is always loving, always merciful and ever-present in our lives. What does change is our understanding of God.

This becomes clear to people who went to Sunday School and then discover that the world and our understanding of how God works in the world is not always as simple as we had learned or would prefer. We know that God is loving but sometimes it seems like the church is not welcoming to some people even though we want to share God’s love.

As we celebrate the 90th anniversary of the United Church of Canada I find it most interesting and gratifying to reflect on our past. In the not so distant past, the church has changed the way it understands God’s love. Our understanding of God’s love has been extended to women as clergy, people who have been divorced, people of different ethnic heritages, people of different sexual orientations and our first nations sisters and brothers. As our understanding of God’s love continues to unfold in the future may God help us to live out our Christian faith and values in our daily lives. On the glorious days of summer, when time seems eternal and the call of the loon seems to call as hauntingly as ever, remember God’s never changing love for us all. God so loved the world and that includes you and me too. God’s blessings.

Sincerely, Rev. Max Ward, Minden United Church.

Rick Fines to play Kinmount pavilion

AROUND THE TOWN

Patti Fleury

705-488-2938

brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse we have just learned that our extended feline family has increased. Younger daughter Caitlin had to put her five-year-old Siamese to sleep back in early spring due to severe respiratory complications and until this past week resisted becoming attached to a new friend. Looking online she found the all too familiar story of five kittens abandoned at the end of a driveway. By the time she went to the pet store where they were being fostered only the female twins Peek and Boo remained available for adoption. The store owner stressed that after all the trauma they should not be separated and so home came the twins. This is a good news story with a happy ending for all five kittens. Many are not so fortunate.

This past Thursday found us along with son Graeme and grandson Ben at the Visitors' Centre in Algonquin Park. The exhibits are extremely well done and as you listen to the many languages being spoken by visitors there is a sense of pride in living in the province of Ontario. Ben did require some reassurance however that the family camping on the river bank were mannequins and not stuffed like the enormous moose, wolves and black bear. If you have not been there yet it is well worth a visit.

There are only five evenings left in the 2015 Music in the Park summer series so on Thursday evenings grab your lawn chairs and head off to the picnic pavilion area in Austin Sawmill Heritage Park for a 6:30 p.m. start. This Thursday will feature Rick Fines then on Aug. 6 Cash on the Barrelhead, on Aug. 13 Johnny Burke, on Aug. 20 Jeff Moulton and on Aug. 27 a return visit by Gord Kidd. Please note that in the event of inclement weather performances will be held at the Kinmount Community Centre. Appreciation is extended to the sponsors of this annual series the Kinmount Committee for Planning and Economic Development and the Kinmount District Lions Club.

Mark your calendars now for the Kinmount and District Health Services Foundation's Journey for Health coming up on Sunday, Aug. 9. Join the doctors and staff from the Kinmount Health Centre for this important fundraiser which assists with ongoing upgrades of medical and office equipment. Plan to walk, cycle or run then begin by picking up your pledge form at the Health Centre, Kinmount Pharmacy, Kawartha Credit Union, Kinmount Independent Food Town, Irondale General Store, Kinmount LCBO, Kinmount Library, Burnt River Library, Riverside Inn in Norland or by calling Joyce Brown at 705-488-2687 or Hazel McInnis at 705-488-2333. Sam Iskander, owner of the Kinmount Pharmacy, has generously offered to match the participant who raises the most pledges to a maximum of $1,500. The event gets underway rain or shine at the Austin Sawmill Heritage Park with registration at 9 a.m. and continues to 11 a.m. followed by lunch supplied by the doctors and staff at the Health Centre and Kawartha Dairy. Prizes supplied by the foundation will be awarded after lunch and will include a prize for children aged 16 years and under who have pledges. Bottled water, oranges and pop will be available during the walk courtesy of Kinmount Independent Food Town, Kinmount Fish and Chips, Kinvale Restaurant and Kinmount Shop 'N Save.

Congratulations to Minden. From all reports the canoe and kayak events held at the Minden Wild Water Preserve as part of the Pan Am Games were very successful. This site, considered world class, is located on the Gull River just below a dam where the Gull empties from Horseshoe Lake. Should the City of Toronto decide to put forward a bid for the future Summer Olympic Games wouldn't it be great to have this involvement again. Bruce was on the Toronto Olympic Bid Committee back in 1996 when Atlanta came out as the eventual winner. There is a great deal of work which goes into this bidding process and equal disappointment when unsuccessful.

Until next week keep busy and well. They go together...

Rick Fines will perform in Kinmount this Thursday.
